

Director of Domestic Violence Response (32-40 hours/week)

Do you want to make a difference in our state by changing the way our systems and policies respond to survivors of domestic violence? Do you have experience leading interdisciplinary teams to achieve results? The Director of Domestic Violence Response will lead a statewide, grant-funded initiative to improve the way our systems respond to domestic violence. This role requires someone with exceptional facilitation skills, who can manage a complex project and establish strong partnerships with a wide variety of stakeholders.

The Vermont Network is a statewide non-profit organization working to end domestic and sexual violence in our state. Candidates must have a minimum of 5 years managing complex projects. Strong commitment to social, economic, and racial justice required. This exempt position can be between 32-40 hours/week, depending on the candidate's preference. Hours will be split between a home office setting and our office in Waterbury, Vermont. The FTE starting salary range for this for this position is $55,000 - $65,000. The Vermont Network provides a flexible work environment and comprehensive benefits, including generous time off.
