STATEWIDE PROJECTS SUPPORTED BY THE VERMONT NETWORK

DIVAS, an advocacy program for incarcerated survivors, served 185 people.

Deaf Vermonters Advocacy Services (DVAS) helped 41 Deaf and hard-of-hearing Vermonters.

94 credentialed Sexual Assault Nurse Examiners (SANEs) provided care for 403 survivors impacted by sexual harm and other violence/abuse (94 children and youth and 309 adults).

344 Vermonters participated in a Domestic Violence Accountability program. 1,2

The Vermont Network's Justice for Victims Legal Clinic assisted or represented 420 clients³, including 208 cases involving domestic violence, 88 involving sexual harm and 32 involving stalking.

More than 40,000 Vermonters experience domestic or sexual violence each year. We estimate this violence costs the state well over $111 million per year in public funding alone.4

¹The Vermont Network coordinates Vermont's Council on Domestic Violence which certifies these programs. ²Although current data collection practices make it difficult to fully assess retention rates in the programs, we do know that a significant majority of participants complete programming. A preliminary Council of State Governments' assessment found that more than twice as many participants completed programming in 2022 than were dismissed. Dismissals are primarily due to excessive absences or new criminal charges.

³100 of those cases were for other issues or a combination of issues.
